

The Planet Zorvath

Zorvath is a fictional planet located in the Krellan star system, invented for testing purposes. Zorvath has three moons: Nyx, Talia, and Ferrin. The capital city of Zorvath is called Meridian Prime, home to approximately 2.3 million inhabitants.

The atmosphere of Zorvath is composed mostly of nitrogen and argon, with trace amounts of methane. This gives the sky a faint violet color during sunset. The average surface temperature is 14 degrees Celsius, making it relatively temperate compared to other planets in the Krellan system.

Zorvath's main export is a mineral called Quenite, which is used in the construction of starship hulls due to its unusual density and heat resistance. The Quenite mines are located in the Drell Mountains, on the northern continent of Ashkar.

The current governor of Zorvath is Administrator Yuna Voss, who has held the position since the year 2117. Before her, the planet was governed by a council of twelve elected representatives.
